1) Editors Blurb:

Originally I wanted to start this newsletter saying...

"Are you always reading the More4you Newsletter from the top to the bottom? You should... :)

Why? So you don't miss out. Like in this issue are two coupon codes that you can use at Add2it.com... one that can be used up to 2 times to get 25% off anything at Add2it.com and another one that can be used just one time to get 50% off anything at Add2it.com.

So... keep reading with your eyes wide open. :)"

While I will keep that offer of giving away those rebates... I came up with another idea that will help to make the More4you Newsletter even more enjoyable for you. :)

I know that for many people, a long newsletter full of valuable information has still one major problem... it is too LONG and there is too little time to read it all at once.

That's why I came up with an idea that will help to solve that problem... I will save you time by making the emails shorter and breaking the valuable information into small, easy to digest pieces.

The More4you Newsletter will soon turn into...
... the More4you BlogLetter!

Instead of sending you one huge email every 1st day of the month, that includes the editors blurb, two articles, the question & answers section, the recommended by the publisher section and all the rest, you will get small messages with one small section at a time spread out over the month as they become available.

Those sections will be posted on the More4you blog as well. No more huge, hard to chew information... but instead one small section at the time.

And as an added benefit... you will be able to read other subscribers feedback as well as leave your own to each section on the corresponding blog entries feedback page.

More4you Newsletter ... more tips, training & tutorials
for webmasters & entrepreneurs. Issue 112 - October 01, 2005

But enough about that for now. You can now go one reading this last issue that contains ALL sections at once... one last time.

Come on... I know you can do it! :)

Next point...

I am still looking for people that are fluent in a second language besides English. If you are also fluent in e.g. Japanese, French, Korean, Italian etc. and you are interested to partner with me or get a free software script copy for a translation, please contact me:

"How to Turn Your Passion into Online Profit"
by Daegan Smith

If you want to start a new home based business hundreds of websites will spoil you for choices. A new business idea is born every second and a large number of these are potentially profitable ones. But on any given day, if you think of turning a hobby into a business, its chances of succeeding increase many-fold. Why? Because you are passionate about it and "like" to do it.

Turning your hobby into a profitable business is one of the best home business opportunities you can get. Imagine doing what you like and getting paid for it! There ain't a better dream come true. However, if you don't keep your feet on the ground, your dream can turn a fairly frightening responsibility and such a chore. Take this reality check to see if you are ready for getting into business and if your hobby can realistically be turned into a profitable idea.

1. Research your hobby: Does turning your hobby into a business fill a real need gap? Is there anyone out there who would want to buy your products? If yes, then are there enough people who can constitute a sizeable market for you to keep your business profitable? Is there an economical way to market and distribute your products or services?

2. Market Research: When you ask questions like the ones above, the answers will come from some in-depth market research. Spend considerable time staking out your market. Research over the Internet. Find out if there is anyone selling your kind of products already? If yes, what has been their success rate? What kind of people would constitute your target market? Is this market big enough to keep you profitable? What are the price points for your product? What are the selling mechanics for your product on the Internet? (Since that's where you are going to base your business)

3. Make a business plan: A good way to determine whether your hobby can turn into a money making proposition is to draw out a full-fledged business plan. You can get free business plan templates from www.bplans.com . Do some number crunching. This would typically include financial forecasts dealing with questions like start up capital and where can you raise it from, the gestation period for the business, income generation and forecasts.

4. Are you geared up for business? Take stock of your own business sense. Are you comfortable with the risks and the cyclical nature of business? When running a business, not every day is Sunday. There can be some bad days too and they may last longer than you'd expect them to. What are your managerial and administrative capabilities? Would you still love your hobby if it became your main income source?

5. Decide how much time can you devote: Before you get all set for wading out into the great ocean of home business, ask yourself, how much time can you realistically spend on your business? If you think making it a full time activity would mean being away from your family more often and not acceptable to you, make it a part - time venture. A fledgling business is like a small baby. It demands your complete attention all the time. Are you up to that?

6. Find an innovative business angle: Just because a hobby is fun for you, doesn't mean someone will pay you to do it. You'd have to do more than just plain sell your services and hope to make enough money. The trick is finding the twist that will turn your recreation into an income.

With the Internet opening up a new marketing landscape, it has become easier for home business owners to do business. So building an online business based on your hobby can provide you with a niche with a large demand and little competition to supply to it. That can make the road to success easier.

Here are some guidelines to get you started:

1. Build a professional website: Your business is based on a hobby, alright. But having a website that doesn't look professional reflects badly on your business. Unless you have the capability to build your own website, you must hire the services of a web designing company to build you a site that fulfills all your website goals and looks professional.

2. Populate the site with useful content: Content is king on the Internet. Unless you give your visitors something useful via content, they are not very likely to stick around your website, much less buy from you.

3. Use the website as an online brochure of your services and products
4. Since you will be using the website to sell your products make sure that the pages are easily navigable and the layout is comprehensible
5. Promote your website: Use reciprocal links, search engine optimization, viral marketing and other online marketing strategies to increase visibility and traffic to your website.

One great disadvantage of chucking it all for a new business is that if it works; great. If it crashes it takes you down with it. But with careful planning and sound judgment of your own capabilities you can make it work.

The question of the last issue:

-----

Last issue I asked you to answer a short survey in regard to how to sell through ezines and approach potential JV partners as well as the best for making a profit.

The results of the survey:

1. I need to know specifically how to use my ezine to sell my $97 info product. I send it out every week - I just don't know how to put in my own advert! I also need to know how to set up a JV with a teleseminar guest speaker - how do I approach them for an offer for the participants, and how do I ask for a commission on sales?

(Question submitted by: Patricia L. Reszetylo)

Karl Smith <karlsult@maltanet.net> :

More4you Newsletter ... more tips, training & tutorials
for webmasters & entrepreneurs. Issue 112 - October 01, 2005

"To insert your product in the ezine - you can send a separate email once every month related only to that product. If the case that you send out your ezine more than once a week than mail your product more frequently. You can also put a link in your signature - or place a 'I recommend this product --link--' at the end of the emails you send out."

Steve Yakim <support@EZasMagic.com> :

"I try to turn my subscribers into marketing partners. Send all of your subscribers a special report in ebook style. In the ebook besides the report that explains how your product will benefit the reader, tell the reader how they can use the report to build their list and earn multiple streams of income by just giving it away.

In this ebook each chapter will have a sponsor ad to one of your products or a 2 tier affiliate program. You can let the reader brand the ads with their affiliate links for free or you can charge them a small customization fee.

Sometimes a picture can be worth a thousand words so here is the link to an ebook I giveaway that promotes a $97.00 product that I created...

<http://www.ezasmagic.com/reports/mistake.htm>

Another method I like to use is giving away a 7-day ecourse. This works extremely well because you have contact with subscribers for seven days. This way you can promote your product in various ways for seven straight days. And naturally you let your subscribers know they are free to use and giveaway the ecourse also.

By allowing you subscribers to give away these free tools, they will be telling people about your product that are outside your sphere of contact.

I have an example you can checkout for this also. This is a new eCourse I wrote to promote a new product that will not be available until October. Here is a link that will give you the free report, 7-day ecourse, and a Mystery Bonus...

<http://www.EZ-MarketingKit.com/ePackagel.htm>

Check the eCourse out because in one of the lessons it gives you an easy way to write your own eCourse. Pay attention to the different income streams this strategy can create. And how the product offer is woven into the eCourse.

As far as putting ads into your ezine, I always have one to three offers in every issue. I usually do not sell ads in my ezine. I use ads to my own products and affiliate products or services. Don't be afraid to send out at least two solo ads a month.

Since this is your own product, start an affiliate program and get your list members to join your affiliate program. Again, turn your list members into marketing partners. Don't think of your list members as only some one to sell to. Think of them as a list of people who can sell for you.

Your list is a great place to test various ads out for your product. You should have several ads already written, classified ads, solo ads, and special reports that you can test. This is especially important if you start an affiliate program.

You want to supply your affiliates with as many tools and instructions as possible that will help them sell.

You can give your list an introductory discount just because they are on your list.

These are just a few suggestions.

I hope they are helpful."

Bronwyn Ngatai <bngatai@gmail.com> :

"First of all make sure that the product relates to your ezine. Have related articles that outline problems that your product solves. Include some testimonials from happy customers. Make a feature of the benefits of your product, incorporate bonuses and a call for action. Don't sell it in your ezine, promote it and let your sales page do the selling.

Tell a potential JV partner what you want to do, how many participants you expect to have and how responsive they are. Outline the benefits for the JV partner as in what you will offer them, percentage of your sales, signups for their list and so on."

Curtis Brown <curtis@saintenterprises.net> :

"Hi Patricia,

More4you Newsletter ... more tips, training & tutorials
for webmasters & entrepreneurs. Issue 112 - October 01, 2005

- 1) I would like to know more about your $97.00 info product, to get an idea on who your target market is, not to mention find out why you feel it is worth $97.00. I feel that too many things are $97.00 and your product may be getting lost in the shuffle.
- 2) Once again I would like more info, but I would give them your business card, and tell him/her that you admire their work and want to know if they would give you a few moments of their time, that you have an idea on helping them make money via the Internet or whatever you have in mind.

After you get their attention make sure you have a detailed plan on what you have in mind and that you would be more than happy to work out a contract with them if need be.

Also let them know of people you may have worked with in the past if you need to prove your credibility. When approaching anyone, have confidence in your self that you can solve their problem."

Patricia L. Reszetylo <patricia@equineteleseminar.net> :

"(I'm Patricia - this was my question!) I came up with four different advertisements, three of which were just testimonials, and then the words "download your materials" and a link to the sales page. Then I insert these, one at a time, into my ezine.

I am also learning how to set up the teleseminar so that it's a JV.

1. I think about, and write down, various aspects that I am bringing to this potential venture, and what my potential partner can bring to it as well.
2. I come up with some ideas as to what the venture might entail.
3. I ask via email for an appointment to call. If that doesn't work, I might actually call, or even send a nice polite letter asking for an appointment.
4. When I get them on the phone, I ask them how they got started in what they are doing, and get them talking at least a little about themselves.
5. I tell them that I would like to do a small joint venture with them, tell them why, and tell them some about myself.
6. I tell them what I'm interested in doing, and ask if that might work with their business goals."

Comments: Wow... great feedback. What's left for me to say? :)

There are so many ways to promote your own products with your newsletter. I personally chose the very light approach of just mentioning my own products when it fits to current subject.

Otherwise I simply promote my products and sites using the signature at the bottom of this newsletter.

Regarding the JV question... Patricia herself did answer that question very good.

I especially like her approach of not giving up and following up via phone and mail. Persistence will bring success.

2. Which is the best for making a profit, a multi level marketing program or selling your own products?
(Question submitted by: Douglas Titchmarsh)

Karl Smith <karlsult@maltanet.net> :

"Both are good - having your own product = less risk. With a program, you receive many emails from that particular program. They can also change some things about the program, or even worse the program might shut down. Having your own program you have all the risks but you take all the control."

Steve Yakim <support@EZasMagic.com> :

"Many multi level marketing programs can only deliver one income stream. If that company goes out of business, you income also stops.

But when selling affiliate products, reprint rights products, and your own products, you can easily build multiple streams of income that will not hurt you if one income stream goes away.

To be successful on the Internet you have to be diverse. Don't put all your eggs into one basket. I also teach that when building lists you have to build multiple tightly targeted lists and not just one list. Your goal is to get as many streams of income going as you can on autopilot.

Try to set things up so that once you get them started they

More4you Newsletter ... more tips, training & tutorials
for webmasters & entrepreneurs. Issue 112 - October 01, 2005

take on a life of their own. Use as many viral principles as you can."

Bronwyn Ngatai <bngatai@gmail.com> :

"Unless you are an excellent affiliate sales person then having your own product can make your more profits. However it all comes down to having a market for your product. No good having an excellent product that none wants. Spend time doing market research, find out about your competition."

Patricia L. Reszetylo <patricia@equineteleseminar.net> :

"YOUR OWN PRODUCT! You can keep adding to an ebook, do teleseminars with related industries, set up an online coaching program with it, set up group and private coachings, classes, affiliate programs, etc."

Curtis Brown <curtis@saintenterprises.net> :

"I've tried both multi-level marketing, and selling my own stuff. Your own stuff wins hands down, because it is a part of who and what you are. You have a deeper commitment to a creation of yours then someone else. Plus you are at the whim of the company as far as product selection and profit being made."

Comments: I could agree more with Steve and the others. You shouldn't place all your eggs in one basket... but:

You should also watch that you don't spread yourself too thin (as I have the tendency to do).

Put the priority also on having your own product or service you can sell. Then slowly, one by one find complementary products or services that you can back end sell besides your own.

Especially with products & services that require you to be on a monthly subscription base, make sure you don't join more than one at the time and get with that program into profit before you even consider joining another one.

"The next Microsoft and eBay business?"
by Frank Bauer

Have you heard about Microsoft? That made Bill Gates billions of dollars or eBay that started out as a small auction site and now a multi million dollar industry?

Now imagine you could find a brand new company. Maybe one that will take the telecommunications industry by storm? Now image that you are lucky enough to find out about it during pre-launch... you could be ahead of the crowd.

Have you wondered why these people who got in early are the ones who made a fortune? People didn't really pay particular attention when Microsoft and eBay launched and now those people that did are millionaires.

You don't have to become a millionaire but at least a decent income of 10-50k per month in a business once you position yourself would be great, wouldn't it? This would be really exciting... how about if you could get in it now for free?

Of course you wouldn't let this thing pass you by and say one day that you should have gotten in early. And you don't have to... because right now you can stop imagining... here comes:

IGONET

You didn't have the opportunity to cash in with Bill Gates on the PC revolution, with Craig McCaw on the cellular revolution, or companies like eBay, Google, or Amazon.com on the Internet revolution, but you can cash in big on not one, not two, but the 3 biggest communications revolutions in history, but you must act now.

Take advantage of the FREE registration. At IGONET you can right now secure a top position.

Here's a basic overview:

IGONET is launching in the U.S. and Canada during October 2005 with their Magic Box and WI-Max!

Do you know JD Sullivan?

The last time he co-founded and launched a company, it became an international giant, with yearly revenues today of more than $750 million. This time, JD Sullivan is coming out of retirement and launching something even more exciting and more lucrative, only this time you can be in at the top before the doors officially open!

The 'magic box' (about the size of a deck of playing cards or a pack of cigarettes) and WI-Max technology (being spearheaded by Craig McCaw who sold his previous company to AT&T for $11 billion) has arrived and it promises to revolutionize a market that in North America alone is valued at more than $400 billion.

Imagine having UNLIMITED local, long distance, and international calling into 20 of the most popular countries for a flat rate of only $29.95 a month! Now you can! All you need is a regular cord or cordless phone and a high speed internet connection such as DSL or cable.

The average home spends around $70 a month for local and long distance phone service, plus per minute charges for international calls. For the 40 million plus homes on a high speed connection such as DSL or cable, now, thanks to an exciting new VOIP company being launched by one of the original co-founders of A.C.N., and a team of top telcom, VOIP, wireless, and internet industry executives, they can get unlimited local, long distance, and international calling into 20 of the most popular international countries for a flat rate fee of just $29.95 a month.

Your basic phone service features are a part of the package including 911 as well and the service comes with a 30 day money back guarantee! You use your current phone and you will even have the option of keeping your current phone number!

And the best part is the magic box, which is about the size of a pack of cigarettes, is portable, meaning you can take it with you wherever you go. Imagine the savings when making phone calls from hotel rooms when you're traveling on business or when you're on vacation.

This is what makes it so easy to sell-simply go over to a friend's house or business who has a hi-speed connection such as DSL or cable, take a few seconds and plug it in, and let them make a few phone calls with it. In fact, IGONET is going to have a demo phone with 90 days of pre-paid usage on it that you can drop off to someone's home or business who has a DSL or cable connection and let them use it for a day. It's the ultimate show, tell, and sell itself product. Imagine holding an opportunity meeting at your home or at a hotel and letting guests make a free long distance phone call. This has to be the biggest no-brainer opportunity ever.

Everybody hates their local phone company and everybody loves saving money, especially if they can save 50% or more off their current monthly local and long distance bill without sacrificing convenience, quality, or service. The telcom industry is about to be transformed by VOIP, but this is only the first of 3 huge opportunities.

WI-Max, a revolutionary breakthrough, is about to change the way that people make wireless phone calls and will enable tens of millions of people to receive hi-speed internet access who do not currently live close enough to their local phone company or do not have cable in their area and IGONET is perfectly positioned to capitalize on both, as in the near future they will also be offering wireless VOIP over WI-Max (which will compete with cellular but offer lower rates), and wireless hi-speed internet access for the millions of homes not near enough to their local phone company or in an area where cable is not available.

The world is moving to VOIP and wireless and those who position now and take action will earn fortunes. That's why top leaders from EXCEL, ACN, and other companies are moving on this now. It's easier and more lucrative than selling traditional long distance or energy savings.

Most exciting, we all know the fortunes earned by those that were in at the beginning of EXCEL (some whose checks topped $1 million a month during its heyday) and the compensation plan, will pay 3 times more money than EXCEL did! It will be a unilevel plan with infinity bonuses plus Customer Acquisition Bonuses for both the sponsor and the rep who acquires the customers.

In addition, IGONET will be offering wireless hi-speed internet access in phase 2 for the more than 100 million homes in the U.S., of which more than 30 million cannot currently receive hi-speed internet access because they are not close enough to their local phone company or do not have cable in their area.

More4you Newsletter ... more tips, training & tutorials
for webmasters & entrepreneurs. Issue 112 - October 01, 2005

Finally, IGONET will be at the forefront of wireless VOIP, which will become a more affordable alternative to traditional cellular calls.

Everyone dreams of being in at the beginning of the next big thing! Our industry hasn't seen anything this revolutionary since the late 1980's and the de-regulation of long distance phone service which explains why top leaders at EXCEL were able to create incomes of up to $1 million a month or more! They were in at the beginning of the first major communications revolution wave. Now you can be at the top of the next 3!

25 million customers will transition from traditional phone service to VOIP - how many would you like to get paid on? Tens of millions will move to wireless voip to replace cellular - how many would you like to get paid on? Tens of millions who do not have hi-speed but would like to will choose wireless hi-speed internet access and tens of millions who currently do but would like to save money will make a move to wireless hi-speed internet - how many would you like to get paid on?

View the 9 minute video now and then secure a free position and website that you can refer people to. Who do you know in the U.S. or Canada that has been involved with a telcom or internet type opportunity in the past?

Get to these people first before someone else does. Some people have personally pre-enrolled more than 100 people already. Some have up to 2300 people positioned below them in just the first 2 weeks.

The registration is free. No money is being asked for at this time - this is strictly about providing you the opportunity to get positioned at the top prior to the company launching and giving you time to get to key people in the U.S. and Canada before someone else does.

The final stages of beta testing are taking place currently and the company will launch in October 2005.

Once you view the movie, register for free to get your own website. You get to pick your own custom website address. Then let everyone you know who has a phone, likes to save money, or likes to make money know about IGONET.

Are you a future leader?

Again... only if I believe after testing it inside out that this product or service is really of a great value, it can be mentioned right here.

This issues recommended product: Midas 05'
<http://add2it.com/see.pl?ISC>

P.S. - If you don't like getting emails that say "New User Notification", or "Another User Just Upgraded Their Plan" by the truckload - then find another free opportunity. This one is not for you.

My organization has grown from 990 to 1017 in the time it's taken me to write this short recommendation. Now that's fast growth and duplication!

Okay... I know the "P.S." is supposed to come at the end of an article or email, but that speaks for itself, doesn't it? When you consider that the rate of upgrades in my organization is around 11%, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that I'm making some moolah through this program - even while I'm doing other things.

That's why this issue's recommended product is:

Midas 05' - <http://add2it.com/see.pl?ISC>

Have you already heard about Midas 05'? If not, I am sure you will hear about it soon... and I mean besides in this issue of the More4you Newsletter.

The Midas 05' system was created by Bram Smith from College Station, Texas... a name that is very well known to many GDI members. He had the number one spot for their weekly bonus for a very long time, before becoming a staff member and voluntarily removing himself from eligibility in any of the referral contests.

He literally made thousands each and every week.

Now he's taken his recruiting concepts, packaged them, automated them, and made them available to everyone - not just his GDI organization.

It doesn't matter if you're promoting VoIP, coffee, or the next big miracle juice - this system can help you get better results - and it's free.

Oh, and the commissions are nice too. In three weeks, Bram has dumped money into my PayPal account about 10 times. :)

Summary - I highly recommend to check out Midas 05'
